

The Israeli Forum of Early Medieval Studies at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem invites you to a lecture by

Prof. Patrick Geary,
Princeton Institute for Advanced Study

“HistoGenes: Introducing genomic data into early medieval history”

Wednesday April 28th at 6:30 pm – 8 pm IDT (4:30 pm BST)

Please register at <https://forms.gle/pQasobFE1Fic4TBt9> to receive the Zoom link.

Prof. Patrick Geary is Professor Emeritus of Medieval History, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, USA. His work extends over a vast range of topics in medieval history, both chronologically and conceptually—from religiosity and social memory to language, ethnicity, social structure, and political organization. Currently, Prof. Geary is co-Principal Investigator of HistoGenes, of a European Research Council Synergy Grant project integrating genetic, archaeological, and historical perspectives on Eastern Central Europe to understand the impact of migrations and mobility on the population of the Carpathian Basin from 400–900 C.E.

